

From Beginning to Burgeoning: Taiwan History Studies in Korea, 1945-2012

Myung-ki Moon

ABSTRACT

This paper reviews the development and the fruits of Taiwan history studies in Korea from 1945 to 2012, as well as the contribution of such studies to the overall research in Taiwan history. Special emphasis is put on the historical contexts and academic significance of these studies. Moreover, according to the review, this paper explores future directions for Taiwan history studies in Korea.

Keywords: Taiwan History as Part of Chinese History, Taiwan History as Reference for Korean History, Comparative National History, Taiwan-Centered Approach